The second phase of the Bodleian First Folio project was made possible by a lead gift from Dr Geoffrey Eibl-Kaye and generous support from the Sallie Dickson Memorial Fund/Dallas Shakespeare Club Fund, Mr James Barber, and a private individual. The Bodleian Libraries are very grateful for this additional support, which brings new features to the digitized First Folio, enabling more efficient and intuitive use for all with an interest in Shakespeare, early modern drama, theatre and book history.

Bound for the Bodleian Library by William Wildgoose, with evidence of two cloth ties, red sprinkled edge. Formerly chained, with evidence of chain staple at the head of the spine. Enclosed in 20th century book box by Maltby of Oxford. See S. Gibson in Original Bodleian Copy of First Folio, p. 12-13. One of four items sent out on 17th February 1624 for binding by Wildgoose containing printed waste from a copy of Cicero’s "De Officiis, et al." The printing and proof-reading of the First Folio of Shakespeare: Oxford, 1963.Acquired by the Bodleian in 1623, presumably in sheets. It was sent out to William Wildgoose on 17 February 1624 for binding (see: Library Records e.258, fol. 48r) and upon its return chained in Duke Humfrey at shelfmark S 2.17 Art. It is listed in the Bodleian’s 1635 catalogue of printed books but was gone by the publication of the next catalogue in 1674, replaced by the newer. There is no explicit reference in Library Records to the disposal of this copy, but there is a record of a sale of "superfluous library books" to <persName>Richard Davis</persName>, a bookseller in Oxford, in <date when="1664">1664</date> for the sum of <num value="24">£24</num>.
After leaving the Bodleian this copy entered the collection of <persName>Richard Turbutt</persName> of Ogston Hall, Derbyshire at some point in the early 18th century. It stayed in the family’s possession until <date when="1906">1906</date>, when it was reacquired by the Bodleian for the sum of <num value="3000">£3000</num>, raised by public subscription. England ne're had a King vntill his time:
Vertue he had, deseruing to command,
His brandisht Sword did blinde men with his beames,
His Armes spred wider then a Dragons Wings:
His sparkling Eyes, repleat with wrathfull fire,
More dazled and droue back his Enemies,
Then mid-day Sunne, fierce bent against their faces.
What should I say? his Deeds exceed all speech:
He ne're lift vp his Hand, but conquered.

Exe.
We mourne in black, why mourn we not in blood?
Henry is dead, and neuer shall reuiue:
Vpon a Woodden Coffin we attend;
And Deaths dishonourable Victorie,
We with our stately presence glorifie,
Like Captiues bound to a Triumphant Carre.
What? shall we curse the Planets of Mishap,
That plotted thus our Glories ouerthrow?
Or shall we thinke the subtile-witted French,
Coniurers and Sorcerers, that afraid of him,
By Magick Verses haue contriu'd his end.

Winch.
He was a King, blest of the King of Kings.
Vnto the French, the dreadfull Iudgement-Day
So dreadfull will not be, as was his sight.
The Battailes of the Lord of Hosts he fought:
The Churches Prayers made him so prosperous.
The Church? where is it?
Had not Church-men pray'd,
His thred of Life had not so soone decay'd.
None doe you like, but an effeminate Prince,
Whom like a Schoole-boy you may ouer-awe.

Glost.
The Church, what ere we like, thou art Protector,
And lookest to command the Prince and Realme.
Thy Wife is prourd, she holdeth thee in awe,
More then God or Religious Church-men may.
Glost.

Name not Religion, for thou lou'st the Flesh, and ne're throughout the yeere to Church thou go' st, except it be to pray against thy foes.

Bed.

Cease, cease these Iarres, rest your minds in peace: Let's to the Altar: Heralds wayt on vs; In stead of Gold, wee'le offer vp our Armes, Since Armes auayle not, now that Henry's dead, Posteritie await for wretched yeeres, When at their Mothers moistned eyes, Babes shall suck, And none but Women left to wayle the dead.

Henry, the Fift, thy Ghost I inuocate: Prosper this Realme, keepe it from Ciuill Broyles, Combat with aduerse Planets in the Heauens; A farre more glorious Starre thy Soule will make, Then Iulius Caesar, or bright.

Enter a Messenger.

Mess. My honourable Lords, health to you all; Sad tidings bring I to you out of France, Of losse, of slaughter, and discomfiture: Guyen, Champaigne, Rheimes, Orleance, Paris Guysors, Poicters, are all quite lost.

What say'st thou man, before dead Henry's Coarse? Speake softly, or the losse of those great Townes Will make him burst his Lead, and rise from death.

Glost. Is Paris lost? is Roan yeelded vp? If Henry were recall'd to life again, These news would cause him once more yeeld the Ghost.

Bedf. What say' st thou man, before dead Henry's Coarse? Speake softly, or the losse of those great Townes Will make him burst his Lead, and rise from death.
Exe.

> How were they lost? what trecherie was vs'd?

Mess.

> No trecherie, but want of Men and Money.

Amongst the Soldiers this is muttered.

> That here you maintaine seuer

And whilst a Field should be dispatch and fought,

> You are disputing of your Generals.

One would have lingering Wars, with little cost.

> Another would flye swift, but wanteth Wings.

A third thinkes, without expence at all,

> By guilefull faire words, Peace may be obtayn'd.

Awake, awake, English Nobilitie,

> Let not slouth dimme your Honors, new begot.

Cropt are the Flower-de-Luces in your Armes

> Of Englands Coat, one halfe is cut away.

Were our Teares wanting to this Funerall,

> These Tidings would call forth her flowing Tides.

Me they concerne, Regent I am of France:

> Giue me my steeled Coat, Ile fight for France.

Away with these disgracefull wayling Robes;

> Wounds will I lend the French, in stead of Eyes,

To weepe their intermissiue Miseries.

Enter to them another Messenger.

> Lords view these Letters, full of bad mischance.

France is revolted from the English quite,

> Except some petty Townes, of no import.

The Dolphin is crowned King
in Rheimes:

Reynold, Duke of Aniou, doth take his part,

The Duke of Alanson flyeth to his side.

Exit.

We will not flye, but to our enemies throats.

If thou be slacke, Ile fight it out.

Why doubtst thou of my forwardnesse?

An Army haue I muster'd in my thoughts, Wherewith already France is ouer-run.

Enter another Messenger.

My gracious Lords, to adde to your laments, Wherewith you now bedew King Henry's hearse, I must informe you of a dismall fight, Betwixt the stout Lord Talbot, and the French.

What? wherein Talbot ouercame, is't so?

O no: wherein Lord was o'rethrown: The circumstance Ile tell you more at large.

The tenth of August last, this dreadfull Lord, Retyring from the Siege of Orleance,
Hauing full scarce six thousand in his troupe,
By three and twentie thousand of the French
Was round incompassed, and set vpon:
No leysure had he to enranke his men.
He wanted Pikes to set before his Archers:
In stead whereof, sharpe Stakes pluckt out of Hedges
They pitched in the ground confusedly,
To keepe the Horsemen off, from breaking in.
More then three houres the fight continued:
Where valiant Talbot, aboue humane thought,
Enacted wonders with his Sword and Lance.
Hundreds he sent to Hell, and none durst stand him:
Here, there, and euer where enrag'd he slew.
The French exclaym'd, the Deuill was in Armes,
All the whole Army stood agaz'd on him.
His Souldiers spying his vndaunted Spirit,
A Talbot, a Talbot, cry'd out amaine,
And rusht into the Bowels of the Battaile.
Here had the Conquest fully been seal'd vp,
If Sir John Falstaffe had not play'd the Coward.
He being in the Vauward, plac't behinde,
With purpose to relieue and follow them,
Cowardly fled, not hauing struck one stroake.
Hence grew the generall wrack and massacre:
Enclosed were they with their Enemies.
A base Wallon, to win the Dolphins grace,
Thrust Talbot with a Speare into the Back,
Whom all France, with their chiefe assembled strength,
Durst not presume to looke once in the face.

Is Talbot slaine then? I will slay my selfe,
For liuing idly here, in pompe and ease,
Whil'st such a worthy Leader, wanting ayd,
Vnto his dastard foe-men is betray'd.

O no, he liues, but is tooke Prisoner,
And Lord Scales with him, and Lord Hungerford:

Most of the rest slaughter'd, or tooke likewise.
Bedf.  His Ransome there is none but I shall pay.

Ile hale the Dolphin headlong from his Throne.

His Crowne shall be the Ransome of my friend:

Foure of their Lords Ile change for one of ours.

Farwell my Masters, to my Taske will I, to every need for Orleance is besieged,
The English Army is growne weake and faint:
The Earle of Salisbury craueth supply,

And hardly keepes his men from mutinie,

Ten thousand Souldiers with me I will take,

Whose bloody deeds shall make all Europe quake.

Remember Lords your Oathes to Henry sworne:

Eyther to quell the Dolphin utterly,

Or bring him in obedience to your yoake.

I doe remember it, and here take my leaue,

To goe about my preparation.

Exit Bedford.

Glost.  Ile to the Tower with all the hast I can,

To view th'Artillerie and Munition,

And then I will proclayme young Henry King.

Exit Gloster.

To Eltam will I, where the young King is,

Being ordain'd his speciall Gouernor,

And for his safetie there Ile best devise.

Dogges, Cowards, Dastards: I would ne'er have fled,

But that they left me 'midst my Enemies.

Salisbury is a desperate Homicide,

He fighteth as one weary of his life:

The other Lords, like Lyons wanting foode,

Doe rush upon vs as their hungry prey.

Alans. Froy

Froysard, a Countreyman of ours, records,

England all Oliuers and Rowlands breed,

During the time Edward the third di'd raigne:

More truly now may this be verified;

For none but Samsons and Goliasses

It sendeth forth to skirmish: one to tenne?

Leane raw-bon'd Rascals, who would e're suppose,

They had such courage and audacitie?
Let's leave this Towne,
For they are hayre-brayn'd Slaves,
And hunger will enforce them to be more eager:
Of old I know them; rather with their Teeth
The Walls they'll tear downe, then forsake the Siege.

I think by some odd Gimmors or Device
Their Armes are set, like Clocks, still to strike on;
Else ne'er could they hold out so as they doe:
By my consent, we'll even let them alone.

Be it so.

Enter the Bastard of Orleance.

Where's the Prince Dolphin? I have newes for him.

Me thinks your looks are sad, your cheer appal'd.
Hath the late overthrow wrought this offence?
Be not dismay'd, for succour is at hand:
A holy Maid hither with me I bring,
Which by a Vision sent to her from Heauen,
Ordayned is to rayse this tedious Siege,
And drive the English forth the bounds of France:
The spirit of deep Prophecy she hath,
Exceeding the nine Sibyls of old Rome:

What's past, and what's to come, she can descry.
Speake, shall I call her in? believe my words,
For they are certaine, and unfallible.

Goe call her in: but first, to try her skill,
Reignier, stand thou as Dolphin in my place;

Question her proudly, let thy Lookes be sterne,

By this meanes shall we sound what skill she hath.

Enter Ioane Puzel.

Reigneir. Faire Maid, is't thou wilt doe these wonderful feats?

Puzel. Dolphin, I am by birth a Shepheards Daughter,

My wit vntrayn'd in any kind of Art:

Heauen and our Lady gracious hath it pleas'd

To shine on my contemptible estate.

Loe, whilest I wayted on my tender Lambes,

And to Sunnes parching heat display'd my cheekes,

Gods Mother deigned to appeare to me,

And in a Vision full of Maiestie,

Will'd me to leaue my base Vocation,

And free my Countrey from Calamitie:

Her ayde she promis'd, and assur'd successse.

In compleat Glory shee reuall'd her selfe:

And whereas I was black and swart before,

With those cleare Rayes, which shee infus'd on me,

That beautie am I blest with, which you may see.

Aske me what question thou canst possible,

And I will answer vnpremeditated:

My Courage trie by Combat, if thou dar'st,

And thou shalt finde that I exceed my Sex.
Resolue on this, thou shalt be fortunate,
If thou receiue me for thy Warlike Mate.

Thou hast astonisht me with thy high termes:
Onely this proofe Ile of thy Valour make,
In single Combat thou shalt buckle with me;
And if thou vanquishest, thy words are true,
Otherwise I renounce all confidence.

I am prepar'd: here is my keene-edg'd Sword,
Deckt with fine Flower-de-Luces on each side,
The which at Touraine, in Saint Katherines Church-yard,
Out of a great deale of old Iron, I chose forth.

Then come a Gods name, I feare no woman.
And while I liue, Il e ne're flye from a man.

Here they fight, and Ioane de Puzel overcomes.

Who e're helps thee, 'tis thou that must help me:
Impatiently I burne with thy desire,
My heart and hands thou hast at once subdu'd.
Excellent Puzel, if thy name be so,
Let me thy servuant, and not Soueraigne be,
"Tis the French Dolphin sueth to thee thus.

I must not yeeld to any rights of Loue,
For my Profession's sacred from aboue:
When I haue chased all thy Foes from hence,
Then will I thinke vpon a recompence.

Meane time looke gracious on thy prostrate Thrall.

My Lord me thinkes is very long in talke.
Shall wee disturb him, since hee keepes no meane?

He may meane m ore then we poor men do know,
These women are shrewd tempters with their tongues.

Why no, I say: distrustfull Recreants,
Fight till the last gaspe: Ile be your guard.

What shee sayes, Ile confirme: wee'le fight it out.
Assign'd am I to be the English Scourge.

This night the Siege assuredly I'll raise:
Expect Saint Martins Summer, <hi rend="italic">Halcyons</hi> dayes,

Since I have entered into these Wars.

Which never ceaseth to enlarge itself,

Boy.

Father I know, and oft haue shot at them,

How e're vnfortunate, I miss'd my ayme.

M. Gunner.

But now thou shalt not. Be thou rul'd by me:

Chiefe Master Gunner am I of this Towne,

Something I must doe to procure me grace:

The Princes espyals haue informed me,

How the English, in the Suburbs close entrencht,

Went through a secret Grate of Iron Barres,

In yonder Tower, to ouer-peere the Citie,

And thence discouer, how with most aduantage

They may vex vs with Shot or with Assault.

To intercept this inconuenience,

A Peece of Ordnance 'gainst it I haue plac'd,

And

Exit.

Boy.

Father, I warrant you, take you no care,

Ile neuer trouble you, if I may spye them.

Exit.

Enter Salisbury and Talbot on the Turrets,
The Earle of Bedford had a Prisoner,

Call'd the braue Lord Ponton de Santrayle, For him was I exchang'd, and ransom'd.

But with a baser man of Armes by farre,

Once in contempt they would haue barter'd me:

Which I disdaining, scorn'd, and craued death,

Rather then I would be so pil'd esteem'd:

In fine, redeem'd I was as I desir'd.

But O, the trecherous Falstaffe wounds my heart,

Whom with my bare fists I would execute,

If I now had him brought into my power.

Yec tell'st thou not, how thou wert entrain'd.

With scoffes and scornes, and contumelious taunts,

In open Market-place produc't they me,

To be a publique spectacle to all:

Here, sayd they, is the Terror of the French,

Then broke I from the Officers that led me,

And with my nayles digg'd stones out of the ground,

To hurl at the beholders of my shame.

My grisly countenance made others flye,

None durst come neere, for feare of suddaine death.

In Iron Walls they deem'd me not secure:

So great feare of my Name 'mongst them were spread,

That they suppos'd I could rend Barres of Steele,

And spurne in pieces Posts of Adamant.

Wherefore a guard of chosen Shot I had,

Ready they were to shoot me to the heart.

Enter the Boy with a Linstock.

I grieue to heare what torments you endur'd,

But we will be reueng'd sufficiently.

Now it is Supper time in Orleance:

Here, through this Grate, I count each one,

Let vs looke in, the fight will much delight thee;
Sir Thomas Gargraue, and Sir William Glansdale,

Let me have your express opinions,

Where is best place to make our Batt'ry next?

I think at the North Gate, for there stands Lords.

And I here, at the Bulwark of the Bridge.

For ought I see, this City must be famisht,

Or with light Skirmishes enfeebled.

Here they shot, and Salisbury falls downe.

O Lord have mercy on us, wretched sinners.

O Lord have mercy on me, wofull man.

What chance is this, that suddenly hath cross'd us?

How far'st thou, Mirror of all Martail men?

One of thy Eyes, and thy Cheekes side struck off?

Accursed Tower, accursed fatal Hand,

In thirteene Battleys, Salisbury o'recame:

Death, Speech doth fail, the Fift he first train'd to the Warres.

Whil'st any Trumpe did sound, or Drum struck vp.

His Sword did ne're leave striking in the field.

Yet liest thou Salisbury? though thy speech doth fayle.
One Eye thou hast to looke to Heauen for grace.
The Sunne with one Eye vieweth all the World.
Heauen be thou gracious to none aliue,
If Salisbury wants mercy at thy hands.
Beare hence his Body, I will helpe to bury it.
Sir Thomas Gargraue, hast thou any life?
Speake vnto Talbot, nay, looke vp to him.
Salisbury cheare thy Spirit with this comfort,
Thou shalt not dye whiles.
He beckons with his hand, and smiles on me:
As who should say, When I am dead and gone,
Remember to auenge me on the French.
Plantaginet I will, and like thee,
Play on the Lute, beholding the Townes burne:
Wretched shall France be onely in my Name.
Here an Alarum, and it Thunders and Lightens.
What stirre is this? what tumult's in the Heauens?
Whence commeth this Alarum, and the noyse?
Enter a Messenger.
My Lord, my Lord, the French haue gather'd head.
The Dolphin, with one loane de Puzel ioynd,
A holy Prophetesse, new risen vp,
It irkes his heart he cannot be reueng'd.
Frenchmen, Ile be a Salisbury to you.
Your hearts Ile stampe out with my Horses heeles,
And make a Quagmire of your mingled braines.

Conuey me Salisbury into his Tent,

And then wee'le try what these dastard Frenchmen dare.

Exeunt.

Here an Alarum againe, and Talbot pursueth the Dolphin,

Talb.
Where is my strength, my valour, and my force?
Our English Troupes retyre, I cannot stay them,
A Woman clad in Armour chaseth them.

Deuill, or Deuils Dam, Ile conjure thee:
Blood will I draw on thee, thou art a Witch,
And straightway giue thy Soule to him thou seru'st.

Come, come, 'tis onely I that must disgrace thee.

Heauens, can you suffer Hell so to preuayle?
My brest Ile burst with straining of my courage,
And from my shoulders crack my Armes asunder,
But I will chastise this high-minded Strumpet.

They fight.

Heauens, can you suffer Hell so to preuayle?

My brest Ile burst with straining of my courage,
And from my shoulders crack my Armes asunder,
But I will chastise this high-minded Strumpet.

They fight.

Talbot farwell, thy houre is not yet come,
I must goe Victuall Orleance forthwith:
A short Alarum: then enter the Towne

The first Part of Henry the Sixt.

O're take me if thou canst, I scorne thy strength.

Goe, goe, cheare vp thy hungry-starued men,

Helpe Salisbury to make his Testament.

This Day is ours, as many more shall be.

A short Alarum.

Hearke Countreymen, eyther renew the fight,

Or teare the Lyons out of Englands Coat;

Renounce your Soyle, giue Sheepe in Lyons stead:

Sheepe run not halfe so trecherous from the Wolfe,

Or Horse or Oxen from the Leopard,

As you flye from your oft-subdued slaues.

Alarum. Here another Skirmish.

It will not be, retyre into your Trenches:

You all consented vnto Salisbury's death.

For none would strike a stroake in his reuenge.

Puzel is entred into Orleance,

In spight of vs, or ought that we could doe.

O would I were to dye with Salisbury.

The shame hereof, will make me hide my head.

Exit Talbot.

Alarum, Retreat, Flourish.
Enter on the Walls,
Puzel, Dolphin, Reigneir,
Alanson, and Souldiers.

Puzel.
Aduance our wauing Colours on the Walls,
Rescu'd is Orleance from the English.
Thus Ioane de Puzel hath perform'd her word.

Dolph.
Diuinest Creature, Astrea's Daughter,
How shall I honour thee for this successe?
Thy promises are like Adonis Garden,
France, triumph in thy glorious Prophetesse,
Recouer'd is the Towne of Orleance,
More blessed hap did ne're befall our State.

Reigneir.
Why ring not out the Bells alowd,
Throughout the Towne?
Dolphin command the Citizens make Bonfires,
And feast and banquet in the open streets,
To celebrate the ioy that God hath giuen vs.

Alans.
All France will be repleat with mirth and ioy,
When they shall heare how we haue play'd the men.

For which, I will diuide my Crowne with her,
And all the Priests and Fryers in my Realme,
Shall in procession sing her endlesse prayse,
A stateleyer Pyramis to her Ile reare,
Then Ioane, not we, by whom the day is wonne:

For which, I will diuide my Crowne with her,
And all the Priests and Fryers in my Realme,
Shall in procession sing her endlesse prayse,
A stateleyer Pyramis to her Ile reare,
Then Ioane, not we, by whom the day is wonne:

In memorie of her, when she is dead,
Her Ashes, in an Vrme more precious
Then the rich-iweld Coffer of Darius, Transported, shall be at high Festivals
Before the Kings and Queenes of France.
No longer on Saint Dennis will we cry,
But Ioane de Puzell shall be France's Saint.
Come in, and let vs Banquet Royally,
After this Golden Day of Victorie.

Enter a Sergeant of a Band, with two Sentinels.
Sirs, take your places, and be vigilant:
If any noyse or Souldier you perceiue
Neere to the walles, by some apparant signe
Let vs haue knowledge at the Court of Guard.
Sergeant you shall. Thus are poore Seruitors
(When others sleepe vpon their quiet beds)
Constrain'd to watch in darknesse, raine, and cold.

Enter Talbot, Bedford, and Burgundy, with scaling Ladders: Their Drummes beating a Dead March.

Lord Regent, and redoubted Burgundy, By whose approach, the Regions of Artoys, Wallon, and Picardy, are friends to vs:
This happy night, the Frenchmen are secure,
Hauing all day carows'd and banquetted,
Embrace we then this opportunitie,
As fitting best to quittance their deceite,
Contriu'd by Art, and balefull Sorcerie.

Coward of France, how much he wrongs his fame,
Dispairing of his owne armes fortitude,
To ioyne with Witches, and the helpe of Hell.

Traitors haue neuer other company.

But what's that Puzell whom they tearme so pure?

A Maid? And be so martiall?

Pray God she proue not masculine ere long:
If vnderneath the Standard of the French
She carry Armour, as she hath begun.

Well, let them practise and conuerse with spirits.
God is our Fortresse, in whose conquering name
Let vs resolue to scale their flinty bulwarkes.

Ascend braue Talbot, we will follow thee.

Not altogether: Better farre I guesse,
That we do make our entrance seuerall wayes:
That if it chance the one of vs do faile,
The other yet may rise against their force.
Agreed; Ile to yond corner.

And I to this.

And heere will Talbot mount, or make his graue.

Now Salisbury, for thee and for the right

Of English Henry, shall this night appeare

How much in duty, I am bound to both.

Arme, arme, the enemy doth make assault.

Cry, S. George, A Talbot.

The French leape ore the walles in their shirts. Enter several wayes, Bastard, Alanson, Reignier, halfe ready, and halfe vnready.

How now my Lords? what all vnreadie so?

Vnready? I am glad we scap'd so well.

'Twas time (I trow) to wake and leaue our beds, Hearing Alarums at our Chamber doores.

Of all exploits since first I follow'd Armes, Nere heard I of a warlike enterprize

More venturous, or desperate then this.

The first Part of Henry the Sixt. More
I thinke this Talbot be a Fiend of Hell.

If not of Hell, the Heauens sure fauour him.

Here Commeth Charles, I maruell how he sped?

Enter Charles and Ioane.

Tut, holy Ioane was his defensiue Guard.

Is this thy cunning, thou deceitfull Dame?

Didst thou at first to flatter vs withall, Make vs partakers of a little gayne, That now our losse might be ten times so much?

Wherefore is Charles impatient with his friend?

At all times will you haue my Power alike?

Sleeping or waking, must I still preuayle,

Or will you blame and lay the fault on me?

Improuident Souldiors, had your Watch been good,

This sudden Mischiefe neuer could haue falne.

Duke of Alanson, this was your default,

That being Captaine of the Watch to Night,

Did looke no better to that weightie Charge.

Had all your Quarters been as safely kept,

As that whereof I had the gouernment,

We had not beene thus shamefully surpriz'd.
Mine was secure. And so was mine, my Lord.

And for my selfe, most part of all this Night within her Quarter, and mine owne Precinct, I was imploy'd in passing to and fro, about relieuing of the Centinels.

Question (my Lords) no further of the case, how or which way; 'tis sure they found some place, but weakely guarded, where the breach was made: And now there, rests no other shift but this, to gather our Souldiors, scatter'd and disperc't, and lay new Plat-formes to endammage them.

Ile be so bold to take what they haue left: The Cry of Talbot serves me for a Sword,

For I haue loaden me with many Spoyles, using no other Weapon but his Name.

Enter Talbot, Bedford, Burgundie.

The Day begins to breake, and Night is fled, whose pitchy Mantle over-vayl'd the Earth. Here sound Retreat, and cease our hot pursuit.
Retreat.

Bring forth the Body of old Salisbury.

And here advance it in the Market-Place;
The middle Centurie of this cursed Towne;
Now haue I pay'd my Vow vnto his Soule;
For euery drop of blood was drawne from him;
There hath at least fiue Frenchmen dyed to night;
And that hereafter Ages may behold;
What ruine happened in reuenge of him,
Within their chiefest Temple Ile erect
A Tombe, wherein his Corps shall be interr'd:
Vpon the which, that euery one may reade,
Shall be engrau'd the sacke of Orleance,
The trecherous manner of his mournefull death,
And what a terror he had beene to France.
But Lords, in all our bloudy Massacre,
I muse we met not with the Dolphins Grace,
His new-come Champion, vertuous Ioane of Acre,
Nor any of his false Confederates.

'Tis thought Lord Talbot, when the fight began,
Rows'd on the sudden from their drowsie Beds,
They did amongst the troupes of armed men,
Leape o're the Walls for refuge in the field.

His new-come Champion, vertuous Ioane of Acre,
Nor any of his false Confederates.

My selfe, as farre as I could well discerne,
For smoake, and duskie vapours of the night,
Am sure I scar'd the Dolphin and his Trull,
When Arme in Arme they both came swiftly running,
Like to a payre of louing Turtle-Doues,
That could not liue asunder day or night.
After that things are set in order here,
Wee'le follow them with all the power we haue.

Enter a Messenger.
So much applauded through the Realme of France?

Here is the Talbot, who would speak with him?

The vertuous Lady, Countesse of Ouergne,
With modestie admiring thy Renowne,
By me entreats (great Lord) thou would'st vouchsafe
To visit her poore Castle where she lyes,
That she may boast she hath beheld the man,
Whose glory fills the World with lowd report.

Is it eu/en so? Nay, then I see our Warres
Will turne vnto a peacefull Comick sport,
When Ladyes craue to be encountred with.
You may not (my Lord) despise her gentle suit.

Ne're trust me then: for when a World of men
Could not preuayle with all their Oratorie,
Yec hath a Womans kindnesse ouer ruler'd:
And therefore tell her, I returne great thankes,
And in submission will attend on her.
Will not your Honors beare me company?

No, truly, 'tis more then manners will:
And I haue heard it sayd, Vnbidden Guests
Are often welcommest when they are gone.

Well then, alone (since there's no remedie)
I meane to proue this Ladyes courtesie.
Come hither Captaine, you perceiue my minde.

Whispers.
Capt. I doe my Lord, and meane accordingly.

Exeunt.

Countesse.

Porter, remember what I gaue in charge, And when you haue done so, bring the Keyes to me.

Madame, I will.

The Plot is layd, if all things fall out right,
I shall as famous be by this exploit,
As Scythian Tomyris by Cyrus death.
Great is the rumour of this dreadfull Knight,
And his atchieuements of no lesse account:
Faine would mine eyes be witnesse with mine eares,
To giue their censure of these rare reports.

Enter Messenger and Talbot.

Madame, according as your Ladyship desir'd, By Message crau'd, so is Lord Talbot come.

And he is welcome: what? is this the man?
Madame, it is.
Is this the Scourge of France?
Is this the <hi rend="italic">Talbot</hi>, so much fear'd abroad?

That with his Name the Mothers still their Babes?

I see Report is fabulous and false.

I thought I should haue seene some <hi rend="italic">Hercules</hi>, A second <hi rend="italic">Hector</hi>, for his grim aspect,

And large proportion of his strong knit Limbes,

Alas, this is a Child, a silly Dwarfe:

It cannot be, this weake and writhled shrimpe Should strike such terror to his Enemies.

Marry, for that shee's in a wrong beleefe,

I goe to certifie her <hi rend="italic">Talbot's</hi> here.

To know the cause of your abrupt departure?

Marry, for that shee's in a wrong beleefe,

I goe to certifie her <hi rend="italic">Talbot's</hi> here.

Enter Porter with Keyes.
Prisoner? to whom?

To me, blood-thirstie Lord:

And for that cause I tray'd thee to my House.

Long time thy shadow hath been thrall to me,

For in my Gallery thy Picture hangs:

But now the substance shall endure the like,

And I will chayne these Legges and Armes of thine,

That hast by Tyrannie these many yeeres

Wasted our Countrey, slaine our Citizens,

And sent our Sonnes and Husbands captiuate.

Ha, ha, ha.

I laugh to see your Ladyship so fond,

To thinke, that you haue ought but

Talbott's shadow,

Whereon to practise your seueritie.

Why? art not thou the man?

I am indeede.

Then haue I substance too.

No, no, I am but shadow of my selfe:

You are deceiu'd, my substance is not here;

For what you see, is but the smallest part,

And least proportion of Humanitie:

I tell you Madame, were the whole Frame here,

It is of such a spacious loftie pitch,
Your Roofe were not sufficient to contayn't.

This is a Riddling Merchant for the nonce,

He will be here, and yet he is not here:

How can these contrarieties agree?

That will I shew you presently.

Winds his Horne, Drummes strike vp, a Peale of Ordenance: Enter Souldiors.

These are his substance, sinewes, armes, and strength,

With which he yoaketh your rebellious Neckes,

Razeth your Cities, and subuerts your Townes,

And in a moment makes them desolate.

Victorious Talbot, pardon my abuse,

I finde thou art no lesse then Fame hath bruited,

And more then may be gathered by thy shape.

Let my presumption not prouoke thy wrath,

For I am sorry, that with reuerence I did not entertaine thee as thou art.

Be not dismay'd, faire Lady, nor misconster The minde of Talbot, as you did mistake

The outward composition of his body.

What you haue done, hath not offended me:

Nor other satisfaction doe I craue,

But onely with your patience, that we may

Taste of your Wine, and see what Cates you haue,

For Souldiers stomacks alwayes serue them well.

With all my heart, and thinke me honored, To feast so great a Warrior in my House.
Exeunt.

Richard Plantagenet, Warwick, Somerset,

Poole, and others.

Great Lords and Gentlemen,

What meanes this silence?

Dare no man answer in a Case of Truth?

Within the Temple Hall we were too lowd,
The Garden here is more convenient.

Then say at once, if I maintain'd the Truth:

Or else was wrangling in th'error?

Faith I haue beene a Truant in the Law,

And neuer yet could frame my will to it,

And therfore frame the Law vnto my will.

Iudge you, my Lord of Warwicke, then be-

Between two Hawks, which flyes the higher pitch,

Between two Dogs, which hath the deeper mouth,

Between two Blades, which beares the better temper,

Between two Horses, which doth beare him best,

Between two Girles, which hath the merryest eye,

I haue perhaps some shallow spirit of Iudget

But in these nice sharpe Quillets of the Law,

Good faith I am no wiser then a Daw.

Tut, tut, here is a mannerly forbearance;
The truth appeares so naked on my side,
That any purblind eye may find it out.

And on my side it is so well apparrell'd,
So cleare, so shinning, and so euident,
That it will glimmer through a blind-mans eye.

Since you are tongue-ty'd, and so loth to speake,
In dumbe significants proclayme your thoughts:
Let him that is a true-borne Gentleman,
And stands vpon the honor of his birth,
If he suppose that I haue pleaded truth,
From off this Bryer pluck a white Rose with me.

Let him that is no Coward, nor no Flatterer,
But dare maintaine the partie of the truth,
Pluck a red Rose from off this Thorne with me.
I loue no Colours: and without all colour
Of base insinuating flatterie,
I pluck this white Rose with <hi rend="italic">Plantagenet</hi>.

I pluck this red Rose, with young <hi rend="italic">Somerset</hi>,
And say withall, I thinke he held the right.

Stay Lords and Gentlemen, and pluck no more:
Till you conclude, that he vpon whose side
The fewest Roses are cropt from the Tree,
Shall yeeld the other in the right opinion.

Good Master <hi rend="italic">Vernon</hi>, it is well
If I haue fewest, I subscribe in silence.
York.

And I.

Vernon.

Then for the truth, and plainnesse of the Case,

I pluck this pale and Maiden Blossome here,

Giving my Verdict on the white Rose side.

Vernon.

Prick not your finger as you pluck it off,

Least bleeding, you doe paint the white Rose red,

And fall on my side so against your will.

If I, my Lord, for my opinion bleed,

Opinion shall be Surgeon to my hurt,

And keepe me on the side where still I am.

Well, well, come on, who else?

Vnlesse my Studie and my Bookes be false,

The argument you held, was wrong in you;

In signe whereof, I pluck a white Rose too.

Now <hi rend="italic">Somerset</hi>, where is your argument?

Vnlesse my Studie and my Bookes be false,

The argument you held, was wrong in you;

In signe whereof, I pluck a white Rose too.

Meane time your cheeks do counterfeit our Roses:
For pale they looke with feare, as witnessing the truth on our side.

No not thy Rose a Canker, Somerset?

Hath not thy Rose a Thorne, Plantagenet?

I, sharpe and piercing to maintaine his truth, Whiles thy consuming Canker eates his falsehood.

Well, Ile find friends to weare my bleeding Roses, Where false dare not be seen.

Now by this Maiden Blossome in my hand, I scorne thee and thy fashion, peeuish Boy.

Turne not thy scornes this way, Prowd, I will, and scorne both him and thee.
Suff.<sp rend="italic">Ile turne my part thereof into thy throat.</sp>

Was not thy Father, Richard, Earle of Cambridge,

For Treason executed in our late Kings dayes? And by his Treason, stand'st not thou attainted. Corrupted, and exempt from ancient Gentry? His Trespas yet liues guiltie in thy blood, And till thou be restor'd, thou art a Yeoman.

My father was attached, not attainted. Condemn'd to dye for Treason, but no Traytor; And that Ile proue on better men then Somerset, Were growing time once ripened to my will. For your partaker Poole, and you your selfe,
Ah, thou shalt finde vs ready for thee still: And know vs by these Colours for thy Foes, For these, my friends in spight of thee shall weare.

And by my Soule, this pale and angry Rose, As Cognizance of my blood-drinking hate, Will I for euer, and my Faction weare, Vntill it wither with me to my Graue, Or flourish to the height of my Degree.

Goe forward, and be choak'd with thy ambition; And so farwell, vntill I meet thee next.

How I am bau'd, and must perforce endure it? And if thou be not then created Yorke, I will not liue to be accounted Warwicke.

Meane time, in signall of my loue to thee, Against prowd Somerset, and William Poole,

Will I vpon thy partie weare this Rose.

And here I prophecie: this brawle to day,

Growne to this faction in the Temple Garden,

Shall send betweene the Red-Rose and the White,

A thousand Soules to Death and deadly Night.

Yorke.

Good Master Vernon, I am bound to you,

That you on my behalfe would pluck a flower.

Ver.

In your behalfe still will I weare the same.

Lawyer.

And so will I.

Yorke.

Thankes gentle.

Come, let vs foure to Dinner: I dare say,

This Quarrell will drinke Blood another day.

Mortimer, brought in a Chayre,

Kind Keepers of my weake decaying Age,

Let dying Mortimer here rest himselfe.

Euen like a man new haled from the Wrack,

So fare my Limbes with long Imprisonment:

And these gray Locks, the Pursuiuants of death,

Nestor-like aged, in an Age of Care,

Argue the end of Edmund Mortimer.

These Eyes, like Lampes, whose wasting Oyle is spent,

Waxe dimme, as drawing to their Exigent.

Weake Shoulders, ouer-borne with burthening Griefe,

And pyth-lesse Armes, like to a withered Vine,
That droupes his sappe-lesse Branches to the ground.
Yet are these Feet, whose stength-lesse stay is numme,
(Vnable to support this Lumpe of Clay)
Swift-winged with desire to get a Graue,
As witting I no other comfort haue.
But tell me, Keeper, will my Nephew come?

Keeper.
Richard Plantagenet, my Lord, will come:
We sent vnto the Temple, vnto his Chamber,
And answer was return'd, that he will come.

Enough: my Soule shall then be satisfied.
Poore Gentleman, his wrong doth equall mine.
Since Henry Monmouth first began to reign,
Before whose Glory I was great in Armes,
This loathsome sequestration haue I had;
And euen since then, hath Henry Monmouth first began to beene obscur'd,
Depriu'd of Honor and Inheritance.
But now, the Arbitrator of Despaires,
Just Death, kinde Vmpire of mens miseries,
With sweet enlargement doth dismisse me hence:
That so he might recouer what was lost.

Enter Richard.
Richard Plantagenet, my friend, is he come?
I, Noble Vnckle, thus ignobly vs'd,
Your Nephew, late despised Richard,
comes.
Direct mine Armes, I may embrace his Neck,
And in his Bosome spend my latter gaspe.
Oh tell me when my Lippes doe touch his Cheekes,
That I may kindly giue one fainting Kisse.
And now declare Sweet stem from Yorkes great stock,
Why didst thou say of late thou wert despis'd?

First, leane thine aged Back against mine Arme,
And in that ease, Ile tell thee my Disease.
This day in argument vpon a Case,
Some words there grew 'twixt Somerset and me:
Among which tearmes, he v'sd his lauish tongue,
And did vpbrayd me with my Fathers death;
Else with the like I had requited him.
Therefore good Vnckle, for my Fathers sake,
And for Alliance sake, declare the cause
My Father, Earle of Cambridge, lost his Head.

That cause (faire Nephew) that imprison'd me,
And hath detayn'd me all my flowring Youth,
Within a loathsome Dungeon, there to pyne,
Was cursed Instrument of his decease.
And for Alliance sake, declare the cause
My Father, Earle of Cambridge, lost his Head.

That cause (faire Nephew) that imprison'd me,
And hath detayn'd me all my flowring Youth,
Within a loathsome Dungeon, there to pyne,
Was cursed Instrument of his decease.

I will, if that my fading breath permit,
And Death approach not, ere my Tale be done.

Henry the Fourth, Grandfather to this King,

The first begotten, and the lawfull Heire

For by my Mother, I deriued am

From Lionel Duke of Clarence, third

To King Edward the Third; whereas

But marke: as in this haughtie great attempt,

They laboured, to plant the rightfull Heire,

I lost my Libertie, and they their Liues.

Long after this, when Henry the Fift

(Succeeding his Father Bullingbrooke)

Did reigne;

Thy Father, Earle of Cambridge, then deriu'd

From famous Edmund Langley, Duke of Yorke,

Marrying my Sister, that thy Mother was;

Againe, in pitty of my hard distresse,

Leuied an Army, weening to redeeme,

And haue install'd me in the Diademe:

And was beheaded. Thus the Mortimers,

In whom the Title rested, were supprest.

Of which, my Lord, your Honor is the last.

Of thy Father, Earle of Cambridge, then deriu'd

Marrying my Sister, that thy Mother was;

But as the rest, so fell that Noble Earle,

And was beheaded. Thus the Mortimers,

In whom the Title rested, were supprest.

Of which, my Lord, your Honor is the last.
But yet be wary in thy studious care.

Thy graue admonishments preuayle with me:

But yet me thinkes, my Fathers execution

Was nothing lesse then bloody Tyranny.

With silence, Nephew, be thou pollitick,

Strong fixed is the House of Lancaster,

And like a Mountaine, not to be remou'd

But now thy Vnckle is remouing hence,

As Princes doe their Courts, when they are cloy'd

With long continuance in a setled place.

Thou do'st then wrong me, as y't slaughterer doth,

Which giueth many Wounds, when one will kill.

Mourne not, except thou sorrow for my good,

Onely giue order for my Funerall.

And so farewell, and faire be all thy hopes,

And prosperous be thy Life in Peace and Warre.

Here dyes the duskie Torch of Mortimer,

Choakt with Ambition of the meaner sort.

And for those Wrongs, those bitter Iniuries,

Which hath off'er'd to my House,

I doubt not, but with Honor to redresse.

And therefore haste I to the Parliament.

Eyther to be restored to my Blood.

Or make my will th'aduantage of my good.

Exit.

Prima.

Winch.

Com'st thou with deepe premeditated Lines?

With written Pamphlets, studiously deuis'd?

Humfrey of Gloster, if thou canst accuse, or ought intend'st to lay vnto my charge, doe it without inuention, suddenly.

Purpose to answer what thou canst obiect.

Presumptuous Priest, this place commands my patience, or thou should'st finde thou hast dis-honor'd me.

Think not, although in Writing I preferr'd the manner of thy vile outragious Crymes, That therefore I haue forg'd, or am not able.

Verbatim to rehearse the Methods of my Penne.

No Prelate, such is thy audacious wickednesse,

Thy lewd, pestiferous, and dissentious prancks,

As very Infants prattle of thy pride,

Thou art a most pernitious Usurer,
Froward by nature, Enemie to Peace,

Lasciuious, wanton, more then well beseemes

A man of thy Profession, and Degree.

And for thy Trecherie, what's more manifest?

In that thou layd'st a Trap to take my Life,

As well at London Bridge, as at the Tower.

Beside, I feare me, if thy thoughts were sifted,

The King, thy Soueraigne, is not quite exempt

From enuius mallice of thy swelling heart.

Winch.

Gloster, I doe defie thee. Lords vouchsafe

To giue me hearing what I shall reply.

If I were couetous, ambitious, or peruerse,

As he will haue me: how am I so poore?

Or how haps it, I seeke not to aduance

Or rayse my selfe? but keepe my wonted Calling.

And for Dissention, who preferreth Peace?

More then I doe? except I be prouok'd.

No, my good Lords, it is not that offends,

It is not that, that hath incens'd the Duke:

It is because no one should sway but hee,

No one, but hee, should be about the King;

And that engenders Thunder in his breast,

And makes him rore these Accusations forth.

But he shall know I am as good.

Am I not Protector, sawcie Priest?

Oh, how this discord doth afflict my Soule.

Can you, my Lord of Winchester, behold
My sighes and teares, and will not once relent?
Who should be pittifull, if you be not?
Or who should study to preferre a Peace,
If holy Church-men take delight in broyles?

Yeeld my Lord Protector, yeeld
Except you meane with obstinate repulse
To stay your Soueraigne, and destroy the Realme.
You see what Mischiefe, and what Murther too,
Hath beene enacted through your enmitie:
Then be at peace, except ye thirst for blood.

He shall submit, or I will neuer yeeld.
Compassion on the King commands me stoupe,
Or I would see his heart out, ere the Priest

You haue great reason to doe Richard rich right,
At Eltam Place I told your Maiestie,
And those occasions, Vnckle, were of force:
Therefore my louing Lords, our pleasure is,
That Richard be restored to his Blood.
Let Richard be restored to his Blood,
So shall his Fathers wrongs be recompenc't.
As will the rest, so willeth Winchester.
If Richard will be true, not that all alone.
But all the whole Inheritance I giue,
That doth belong vnto the House of Yorke.

And humble seruice, till the point of death.
Stoope then, and set your Knee against my Foot,
And in reguerdon of that dutie done,
I gyrt thee with the valiant Sword of
Yorke:

Rise Richard, like a true Plantagenet, and rise created Princely Duke of Yorke.

And so thriue Richard, as thy foes may fall,

And as my dutie springs, so perish they, That grudge one thought against your Maiestie.

And now I feare that fatall Prophecie,

Which in the, time of Henry, nam’d the Fift,
Was in the mouth of euery sucking Babe,
That Henry borne at Monmouth should winne all,
And Henry borne at Windsor, loose all:
Which is so plaine, that Exeter doth wish,

His dayes may finish, ere that haplesse time.

God b'uy my Lord, we came but to tell you That wee are here.

Exeunt from the Walls.

And there will we be too, ere it be long, Or else reproach be Talbots greatest fame.

Vow Burgonie, by honor of thy House, Prickt on by publike Wrongs sustain'd in France, Either to get the Towne againe, or dye. And I, as sure as English Henry

And as his Father here was Conqueror; As sure as in this late betrayed Towne, Great Heart was buryed;

So sure I sweare, to get the Towne, or dye.

My Vowes are equall partners with thy Vowes.
But ere we goe, regard this dying Prince, The valiant Duke of Bedford: Come my Lord, We will bestow you in some better place, Fitter for sickness, and for crasie age.

Lord Talbot, doe not so dishonour me: Here will I sit, before the Walls of Roan, And will be partner of your weale or woe.

Couragious Bedford, let vs now perswade you.

Not to be gone from hence: for once I read, That stout Pendragon, in his Litter sick,

Came to the field, and vanquished his foes. Me thinkes I should reuiue the Souldiors hearts, Because I euer found them as my selfe.

Vndaunted spirit in a dying breast, Then be it so: Heauens keepe old Bedford safe.

And now no more adoe, braue Burgonie, But gather we our Forces out of hand, And set vpon our boasting Enemie.

Enter Sir John Falstaffe, and a Captaine. Whither away Sir John Falstaffe, in such haste?

Whither away? to saue my selfe by flight. We are like to haue the ouerthrow againe.
Thanks gentle Duke: but where is Pucel now?

I thinke her old Familiar is asleepe.

Now where's the Bastards braues, and his glikes?

What all amort? Roan hangs her head for griefe,

That such a valiant Company are fled.

Now will we take some order in the Towne,

Placing therein some expert Officers,

And then depart to Paris, to the King,

For there young Henry with his Nobles lye.

What wills Lord Talbot, pleaseth Burgonie.

But yet before we goe, let's not forget the Noble Duke of Bedford, late deceas'd,

But see his Exequies fullfill'd in Roan.

A brauer Souldier neuer couched Launce,

A gentler Heart did neuer sway in Court.

But Kings and mightiest Potentates must die,

For that's the end of humane miserie.

Exeunt.

[Act 3, Scene 3]

Enter Charles, Bastard, Alanson, Pucell.

Dismay not (Princes) at this accident,

Nor grieue that Roan is so recouered:

Care is no cure, but rather corrosiue,

For things that are not to be remedy'd.

Let frantike Talbot triumph for a while,

And like a Peacock sweepe along his tayle,

Wee'le pull his Plumes, and take away his Trayne,

If Dolphin and the rest will be but rul'd.
And of thy Cunning had no diffidence,
One sudden Foyle shall neuer breed distrust.

Bastard.

Search out thy wit for secret pollicies,
And we will make thee famous through the World.

Alans.

Wee'le set thy statue in some holy place,
And haue thee reuerenc't like a blessed Saint.

Employ thee then, sweet Virgin, for our good.

Pucell.

Then thus it must be, this doth Ioane devise:
By faire perswasions, mixt with sugred words,
We will entice the Duke of Burgonie
To leaue the Talbot, and to follow vs.

Charles.

I marry Sweeting, if we could doe that,
France were no place for Henryes Warriors,
Nor should that Nation boast it so with vs,
But be extirped from our Prouinces.

Alans.

For euer should they be expuls'd from France,
And not haue Title of an Earledome here.

Pucell.

Your Honors shall perceiue how I will worke,
To bring this matter to the wished end.

Drumme sounds afarre off.

Hearke, by the sound of Drumme you may perceiue
Their Powers are marching vnto Paris-ward.

There goes the Talbot, with his Colours spred,
And all the Troupes of English after him.
<hi rend="italic">French</hi>

The first Part of the Henry the Sixt.</fw>

French March.

Now in the Rereward comes the Duke and his:

Fortune in fauor makes him lagge behinde.

Summon a Parley, we will talke with him.

Trumpets sound a Parley.

Charles.

A Parley with the Duke of Burgonie.

Who craues a Parley with the Burgonie?

The Princely Charles of France, thy Countrey-man.

What say'st thou Charles? for I am marching hence.

Speake on, but be not ouer-tedious.

Stay, let thy humble Hand-maid speake to thee.

Braue Burgonie, vndoubted hope of France, I

Stay, let thy humble Hand-maid speake to thee.

Speake on, but be not ouer-tedious.
Pucell.

Looke on thy Country, look on fertile France,
And see the Cities and the Townes defac't,
By wasting Ruine of the cruell Foe,
As lookes the Mother on her lowly Babe,
When Death doth close his tender-dying Eyes,
See, see the pining Maladie of France:
Behold the Wounds, the most vnnaturall Wounds,
Which thou thy selfe hast giuen her wofull Brest,
Oh turne thy edged Sword another way,
Strike those that hurt, and hurt not those that helpe:
One drop of Blood drawne from thy Countries Bosome,
Should grieue thee more then streames of forraine gore.
Returne thee therefore with a floud of Teares,
And wash away thy Countries stayned Spots.

Burg.

Either she hath bewitcht me with her words,
Or Nature makes me suddenly relent.

Besides, all French and France exclaims on thee,
Doubting thy Birth and lawfull Progenie.
Who ioyn'st thou with, but with a Lordly Nation,
That will not trust thee, but for profits sake?
When <hi rend="italic">Talbot</hi> hath set footing once in France,
And fashion'd thee that Instrument of Ill,
Who then, but English <hi rend="italic">Henry</hi>, will be Lord,
And thou be thrust out, like a Fugitiue?
Call we to minde, and marke but this for proofe:
Was not the Duke of Orleance thy Foe?
And was he not in England Prisoner?
But when they heard he was thine Enemie,
They set him free, without his Ransome pay'd,
In spight of <hi rend="italic">Burgonie</hi> and all his friends.
See then, thou figh'tst against thy Countreymen,
And ioyn'st with them will be thy slaughter-men.
Come, come, returne; returne thou wandering Lord,
Charless</hi> and the rest will take thee in their armes.
<speaker rend="italic">Burg.</speaker>

I am vanquished:

These haughtie wordes of hers

Haue batt'red me like roaring Cannon-shot,

And made me almost yeeld vpon my knees.

Forgie me Countrey, and sweet Countreymen:

And Lords accept this heartie kind embrace.

My Forces and my Power of Men are yours.

So farwell <hi rend="italic">Talbot</hi>, Ile no longer trust thee.</sp>

My gracious Prince, and honorable Peeres,
Hearing of your arriuall in this Realme,
I haue a while giuen Truce vnto my Warres,
To doe my dutie to my Soueraigne,
In signe whereof, this Arme, that hath reclaym'd
To your obedience, fiftie Fortresses,
Twelue Cities, and seuen walled Townes of strength,
Beside fiue hundred Prisoners of esteeme,
Lets fall his Sword before your Highnesse feet:
And with submissiue loyaltie of heart
Ascribes the Glory of his Conquest got,
First to my God, and next vnto your Grace.

Is this the Lord Talbot, Vnckle Gloucester,
That hath so long beene resident in France?
Yes, if it please your Maiestie, my Liege.
That hath so long beene resident in France?

Welcome braue Captaine, and victorious Lord:
When I was young (as yet I am not old)
I doe remember how my Father said,
A stouter Champion neuer handled Sword.
Long since we were resolued of your truth,
Your faithfull seruice, and your toyle in Warre:
Yet neuer haue you tasted our Reward,
Or beene reguerdon'd with so much as Thanks,
Because till now, we neuer saw your face,
Therefore stand vp, and for these good deserts,
We here create you Earle of Shrewsbury,
And in our Coronation take your place

Manet Vernon and Basset.

Now Sir, to you that were so hot at Sea,
Disgracing of these Colours that I weare,
In honor of my Noble Lord of Yorke
Dar'st thou maintaine the former words thou spak'st?

Yes Sir, as well as you dare patronage. The enuious barking of your sawcie Tongue, Against my Lord the Duke of Somerset.

Sirrha, thy Lord I honour as he is.

Why, what is he? as good a man as Yorke.

Hearke ye: not so: in witnesse take ye that. Strikes him.

Villaine, thou knowest.

The Law of Armes is such, That who so drawes a Sword,'tis present death,

But Ile vnto his Maiestie, and craue, I may haue libertie to venge this Wrong,

When thou shalt see, Ile meet thee to thy cost.

Well miscreant, Ile be there as soone as you,

[Act 4, Scene 1]

Enter King, Glocester, Winchester, Yorke, Suffolke, Somer-

<lb/>set, Warwicke, Talbot, and Gouernor Exeter.< staging>

Glo.

Lord Bishop set the Crowne vpon his head.

Win.

God saue King of that name the sixt.

Glo.

Now Gouernour of Paris take your oath,

That you elect no other King but him;

Esteeme none Friends, but such as are his Friends,

And none your Foes, but such as shall pretend

Malicious practises against his State:

This shall ye do, so helpe you righteous God.

Enter Falstaffe.

Fal.

My gracious Soueraigne, as I rode from Calice,

To haste vnto your Coronation:

A Letter was deliuer'd to my hands.

Writ to your Grace, from th'Duke of Burgundy.

Tal.

Shame to the Duke of Burgundy, and thee:

I vow'd (base Knight) when I did meete the next,

To teare the Garter from thy Crauens legge,

Which I haue done, because (vnworthily)

Thou was't installed in that High Degree.

Pardon me Princely Henry, and the rest:

This Dastard, at the battell of Poictiers, Henry, and the
When (but in all) I was sixe thousand strong,
And that the French were almost ten to one,
Before we met, or that a stroke was giuen,
Like to a trustie Squire, did run away.
In which assault, we lost twelue hundred men.
My selfe, and diuers Gentlemen beside,
Were thetere surpriz'd, and taken prisoners.
Then iudge (great Lords) if I haue done amisse:
Or whether that such Cowards ought to weare
This Ornament of Knighthood, yea or no?

To say the truth, this fact was infamous,
And ill beseeming any common man;
Much more a Knight, a Captaine, and a Leader.
When first this Order was ordain'd my Lords,
Knights of the Garrer were of Noble birth;
Valiant, and Vertuous, full of haughtie Courage,
Such as were growne to credit by the warres:
Not fearing Death, nor shrinking for Distresse,
But alwayes resolute, in most extreames.
He then, that is not furnish'd in this sort,
Doth vsurpe the Sacred name of Knight,
Prophaning this most Honourable Order,
And should (if I were worthy to be Iudge)
Be quite degraded, like a Hedge-borne Swaine,
That doth prefume to boast of Gentle blood.

Staine to thy Countrymen, thou hear'st thy doom:
Be packing therefore, thou that was't a knight:
Henceforth we banish thee on paine of death.
And now Lord Protector, view the Letter
Sent from our Vnckle Duke of Burgundy.

What meanes his Grace, that he hath chaung'd his Stile?
No more but plaine and bluntly?
Hath he forgot he is his Soueraigne?
Or doth this churlish Superscription pretend some alteration in good will?
What's heere? I haue vpon especiall cause,
Mou'd with compassion of my Countries wracke,
Together with the pittiful complaints Of such as your oppression feedes vpon,
Forsaken your pernitious Faction,
And ioyn'd with Charles, the rightfull king of France.
O monstrous Treachery: Can this be so?
That in alliance, amity, and oathes, There should be found such false dissembling guile?
Is that the worst this Letter doth containe?
It is the worst, and all (my Lord) he writes.
Why then Lord Talbot there shal talk with him,
And giue him chasticement for this abuse.
How say you (my Lord) are you not content?
Content, my Liege? Yes: But y am preuented,
I should haue begg'd I might haue bene employd.
Then gather strength, and march unto him straight:
Let him perceive how ill we brooke his Treason,
And what offence it is to flout his Friends.

Tal. I go my Lord, in heart desiring still
You may behold confusion of your foes.

Enter Vernon and Bassit.

Ver. Grant me the Combate, gracious Soueraigne.
Bas. And me (my Lord) grant me the Combate too.
Yorke. This is my Servant, heare him Noble Prince.
Som. And this is mine (sweet Henry) fauour him.

King. Be patient Lords, and giue them leaue to speak.
Say Gentlemen, what makes you thus exclaime,
And wherefore craue you Combate? Or with whom?
With him (my Lord) for he hath done me wrong.
And I with him, for he hath done me wrong.

King. What is that wrong, wherof you both complain
First let me know, and then Ile answer you.

Bas.
Crossing the Sea, from England into France,
This Fellow heere with enuious carping tongue,
Vpbraided me about the Rose I weare,
Saying, the sanguine colour of the Leaues
Did represent my Masters blushing cheekes;
When stubbornly he did repugne the truth,
About a certaine question in the Law,
Argu'd betwixt the Duke of Yorke, and him:
With other vile and ignominious tearmes.
In confutation of which rude reproach,
And in defence of my Lords worthinesse,
I craue the benefit of Law of Armes.

Ver. And that is my petition (Noble Lord:)
For though he seeme with forged queint conceite
To set a glosse vpon his bold intent,
Yet know (my Lord) I was prouok'd by him,
And he first tooke exceptions at this badge,
Pronouncing that the palenesse of this Flower,
Bewray'd the faintnesse of my Masters heart.

Yorke. Will not this malice Somerset be left?
Your priuate grudge my Lord of York, wil out,
Though ne're so cunningly you smother it.

King. Good Lord, what madnesse rules in braine-
When for so
and friuolous a cause,
Such factious emulations shall arise?
Good Cosins both of Yorke and Somerset,
Quiet your selues (I pray) and be at peace.

Yorke. Let this dissention first be tried by fight,
And then your Highnesse shall command a Peace.
Som. The quarrell toucheth none but vs alone, Betwixt our selues let vs decide it then.

Yorke. There is my pledge, accept it Somerset.

Ver. Nay, let it rest where it began at first.

Bass. Confirme it so, mine honourable Lord.

Glo. Confirme it so? Confounded be your strife, And perish with your audacious prate, Presumptuous vassals, are you not asham'd With this immodest clamorous outrage, To trouble and disturb the King, and Vs? And you my Lords, me thinkes you do not well To beare with their peruerse Obiections: Much lesse to take occasion from their mouthes, To raise a mutiny betwixt your selues. Let me perswade you take a better course.

Exet. It greeues his Highnesse, Good my Lords, be Friends.

King. Come hither you that would be Combatants: Henceforth I charge you, as you loue our fauour, Quite to forget this Quarrell, and the cause. And you my Lords: Remember where we are, In France, amongst a fickle wausing Nation: If they perceyue dissention in our lookes,
And that within our selues we disagree;
How will their grudging stomackes be prouok'd
To wilfull Disobedience, and Rebell?
Beside, What infamy will there arise,
When Forraigne Princes shall be certified,
That for a toy, a thing of no regard,
King <hi rend="italic">Henries</hi> Peeres, and cheefe Nobility,
Destroyn'd themselues, and lost the Realme of France?
Oh thinke vpon the Conquest of my Father,
My tender yeares, and let vs not forgoe
That for a trifle, that was bought with blood.
Let me be Vmper in this doubtfull strife:
I see no reason if I weare this Rose,
That any one should therefore be suspitious
I more incline to Somerset, than Yorke:
Both are my kinsmen, and I loue them both.
As well they may vpbray'd me with my Crowne,
Because (forfooth) the King of Scots is Crown'd.
But your discretions better can perswade,
Then I am able to instruct or teach:
And therefore, as we hither came in peace,
So let vs still continue peace, and loue.
Colin of Yorke, we institute your Grace
To be our Regent in these parts of France:
And good my Lord of Somerset, vnite
Your Troopes of horsemen, with his Bands of foote,
And like true Subjects, sonnes of your Progenitors,
Go cheerefully together, and digest
Your angry Choller on your Enemies.
Our Sselfe, my Lord Protector, and the rest,
After some respit, will returne to Calice;
From thence to England, where I hope ere long
To be presented by your Victories,
With <hi rend="italic">Charles, Alanson</hi>, and that Traiterous rout.

War.
My Lord of Yorke, I promise you the King
Prettily (me thought) did play the Orator.

War.
My Lord of Yorke, I promise you the King
Prettily (me thought) did play the Orator.

Yorke.
And so he did, but yet I like it not,
In that he weares the badge of Somerset.
War.

Tush, that was but his fancie, blame him not, I dare presume (sweet Prince) he thought no harme.

Yorke.

And if I wish he did. But let it rest, Other affayres must now be managed.

Exeunt.

Flourish. Manet

Exet.

Well didst thou Richard to suppresse thy voice:

For had the passions of thy heart burst out, I feare we should haue seene decipher'd there More rancorous spight, more furious raging broyles, Then yet can be imagin'd or suppos'd: But howsoere, no simple man that sees This iarring discord of Nobilitie, This shouldering of each other in the Court, This factious bandying of their Faouurites, But that it doth presage some ill euent. 'Tis much, when Scepters are in Childrens hands: But more, when Enuy breeds vnkinde deuision. There comes the ruine, there begins confusion.

Exit.

[Act 4, Scene 2] Enter Talbot with Trumpe and Drumme, before Burdeaux.

Go to the Gates of Burdeaux Trumpeter, Summon their Generall vnto the Wall. Sounds. Enter Generall aloft. English (Captaines) call you forth, Seruant in Armes to Harry King of England. And thus he would. Open your Citie Gates,
Be humble to vs, call my Soueraigne yours,
And do him homage as obedient Subiects,
And Ile withdraw me, and my bloody power.
But if you srowne vpon this proffer'd Peace,
You tempt the fury of my three attendants,
Leane Famine, quartering Steele, and climbing Fire,
Who in a moment, eeuen with the earth,
Shall lay your stately, and ayre-brauing Towers,
If you forsake the offer of their loue.

Thou ominous and fearefull Owle of death,
Our Nations terror, and their bloody scourge,
The period of thy Tyranny approacheth,
On vs thou canst not enter but by death:
For I protest we are well fortified,
And strong enough to issue out and fight.
If thou retire, the Dolphin well appointed,
Stands with the snares of Warre to tangle thee,
On either hand thee, there are squadrons pitcht,
To wall thee from the liberty of Flight;
And no way canst thou turne thee for redresse,
But death doth front thee with apparant spoyle,
And pale destruction meets thee in the face:
Ten thousand French haue tane the Sacrament,
To ryue their dangerous Artillerie,
Vpon no Christian soule but English

Loe, there thou standst a breathing valiant man
Of an inuincible vnconquer'd spirit:
This is the latest Glorie of thy praise,
That I thy enemy dew thee withall:
For ere the Glasse that now begins to runne,
Finish the processe of his sandy houre,
These eyes that see thee now well coloured,
Shall see thee withered, bloody, pale, and dead.

Harke, harke, the Dolphins drumme, a warning bell,
Sings heauy Musicke to thy timorous soule,
And mine shall ring thy dire departure out.

He Fables not, I heare the enemie:
Out some light Horsemen, and peruse their Wings.
O negligent and heedlesse Discipline.
How are we park'd and bounded in a pale?
A little Heard of Englands timorous Deere,
Maz'd with a yelping kennell of French Curres,
If we be English Deere, be then in blood,
Not Rascall-like to fall downe with a pinch,
But rather moodie mad: And desperate Stagges,

The first Part of Henry the Sixt.

Turne on the bloody Hounds with heads of Steele,
And make the Cowards stand aloofe at bay:
Sell euery man his life as deere as mine,
And they shall finde deere Deere of vs my Friends.

God, and Saint George, Talbot and Englands right,
Prosper our Colours in this dangerous fight.

Enter a Messenger that meets Yorke. Enter Yorke with Trumpet, and many Soldiers.

Are not the speedy scouts return'd againe,
That dog'd the mighty Army of the Dolphin?

They are return'd my Lord, and giue it out,
That he is march'd to Burdeaux with his power
By your espyals were discouered
Two mightier Troopes then that the Dolphin led,
Which ioyn'd with him, and made their march for Burdeaux

By your espyals were discouered
Two mightier Troopes then that the Dolphin led,
Which ioyn'd with him, and made their march for

That thus delays my promised supply
Of horsemen, that were leuied for this siege.

Renowned Talbot doth expect my ayde.

And I am lowted by a Traitor Villaine.

And cannot helpe the noble Cheualier.

God comfort him in this necessity.

If he miscarry, farewell Warres in France.

Enter another Messenger.

Thou Princely Leader of our English strength,

Neuer so needfull on the earth of France,

Spurre to the rescue of the Noble Talbot,

Who now is girdled with a waste of Iron,

And hem'd about with grim destruction:

To Burdeaux warlike Duke, to Burdeaux Yorke,

Else farwell Talbot, France, and Englands honor.

O God, that Somerset who in proud heart

Doth stop my Cornets, were in Talbots place,

So should wee saue a valiant Gentleman,

By forfeyting a Traitor, and a Coward:

Mad ire, and wrathfull fury makes me weepe,

That thus we dye, while remisse Traitors sleepe.

O send some succour to the distrest Lord.

He dies, we loose: I breake my warlike word:

By forfeyting a Traitor, and a Coward:

We mourn, France smiles: We loose, they dayly get,

All long of this vile Traitor Somerset.

Then God take mercy on braue Talbots soule,

And on his Sonne yong John, who two houres since,

I met in trouaile toward his warlike Father;

This seuen yeeres did not Talbot see his sonne,

And now they meete where both their liues are done.

Yorke.

Alas, what ioy shall noble Talbot haue,

To bid his yong sonne welcome to his Graue:

Away, vexation almost stoppes my breath,

That sundred friends greete in the houre of death.

Lucie farewell, no more my fortune can,

But curse the cause I cannot ayde the man.

Maine, Bloys, Poytiers, and Toures, are wonne away,

Long all of Somerset, and his delay.

Thus while the Vulture of sedition,

Feedes in the bosome of such great Commanders,

Sleeping neglection doth betray to losse:

The Conquest of our scarce-cold Conqueror,

That euer-living man of Memorie,

Henrie the fift: Whiles they each other crosse,

Liues, Honours, Lands, and all, hurrie to losse.

It is too late, I cannot send them now:

This expedition was by Yorke and Talbot,

Too rashly plotted. All our generall force,

Might with a sally of the very Towne

Hath sullied all his glosse of former Honor

By this vnheedfull, desperate, wilde aduenture.
Yorke set him on to fight, and dye in shame,

That Talbot dead, great Yorke might bear the name.

Heere is Sir William Lucie, who with me.

Set from our o're-matcht forces forth for ayde.

How now Sir William, whether were you sent?

Whether my Lord, from bought & sold <choice>

L. <abbr>Lord</abbr>

Lord</expansion>

Talbot.

Who ring'd about with bold aduersitie,

Cries out for noble Yorke and Somerset,

And whiles the honourable Captaine there

Drops bloody swet from his warre-wearied limbes,

And in aduantage lingring lookes for rescue,

You his false hopes, the trust of Englands honor,

Keep off aloofe with worthlesse emulation:

Let not your priuate discord keepe away

The leuied succours that should lend him ayde,

While he renowned Noble Gentleman

Yeeld vp his life vnto a world of oddes,

Orleance the Bastard, Charles, Burgundie,

Alanson, Reignard, compasse him about,

And Talbot perishteth by your default.
And Yorke as fast vnpon your Grace exclaimes,
Swearing that you with-hold his leuied hoast,
Collected for this expidition.

Som. York lyes: He might haue sent, & had the Horse;
I owe him little Dutie, and lesse Loue,
And take foule scorne to fawne on him by sending.

Som. The fraud of England, not the force of France,
Hath now intrapt the Noble-minded Talbot:
Neuer to England shall he beare his life,
But dies betraid to fortune by your strife.

Som. Come go, I will dispatch the Horsemen strait:
Within sixe houres, they will be at his ayde.

Som. Too late comes rescue, he is tane or slaine,
For flye he could not, if he would haue fled:
And flye would Talbot neuer though he might.

Som. If he be dead, braue Talbot then adieu.

Lu. His Fame liues in the world. His Shame in you.

Exeunt.

Enter Talbot and his Sonne.

Tal. O yong Iohn Talbot, I did send for thee
to tutor thee in stratagems of Warre,
That name might be in thee reuied,

When saplesse Age, and weake vnable limbes

Should bring thy Father to his drooping Chaire.

But O malignant and ill-boading Starres,

Now thou art come vnto a Feast of death,

A terrible and vnauoyded danger;

Therefore deere Boy, mount on my swiftest horse,

And Ile direct thee how thou shalt escape

By sodaine flight. Come, dally not, be gone.

Is my name Talbot? and am I your Sonne?

Shall I flye? O, if you loue my Mother,

Dishonor not her Honorable Name,

To make a Bastard, and a Slaue of me:

The World will say, he is not Talbots blood,

That basely fled, when Noble Talbot stood.

Flye, to reuenge my death, if I be slaine.

And shall I flye? O, if you loue my Mother,

Dishonor not her Honorable Name,

To make a Bastard, and a Slaue of me:

The World will say, he is not Talbots blood,

If we both stay, we both are sure to dye.

Then let me stay, and Father doe you flye:

Your losse is great, so your regard should be;

My worth vnknowne, no losse is knowne in me.

Vpon my death, the French can little boast;

In yours they will, in you all hopes are lost.

Flight cannot stayne the Honor you haue wonne,
But mine it will, that no Exploit haue done.

You fled for Vantage, euery one will sweare:

But if I bow, they'le say it was for feare.

There is no hope that euer I will stay.

If the first howre I shrinke and run away:

Here on my knee I begge Mortalitie,

Rather then Life, preseru'd with Infamie.

Shall all thy Mothers hopes lye in one Tombe?

I, rather then Ile shame my Mothers Wombe.

Part of thy Father may be sau'd in thee.

No part of him, but will be shame in mee.

Thou neuer hadst Renowne, nor canst not lose it.

You cannot witnesse for me, being slaine.

It warm'd thy Fathers heart with proud desire
Of bold-fac't Victorie. Then Leaden Age,
Quicken'd with Youthfull Spleene, and Warlike Rage,
Beat downe Alanson, Orleance,
And from the Pride of Gallia rescued thee.
The irefull Bastard Orleance, that drew
From thee my Boy, and had the Maidenhood
Of thy first fight, I soone encountred,
And interchanging blowes, I quickly shed
Some of his Bastard blood, and in disgrace
Bespoke him thus: Contaminated, base,
And mis-begotten blood, I spill of thine,
Meane and right poore, for that pure blood of mine,
Which thou didst force from Talbot, my braue Boy.
Here purposing the Bastard to destroy,
Came in strong rescue. Speake thy Fathers care:
Art thou not wearie? How do'st thou fare?
Wilt thou yet leaue the Battaile, Boy, and flie,
Now thou art seal'd the Sonne of Chiualrie?
Flye, to reuenge my death when I am dead,
The helpe of one stands me in little stead.
Oh, too much folly is it, well I wot,
To hazard all our liues in one small Boat.
If I to day dye not with Frenchmens Rage,
To morrow I shall dye with mickle Age.
By me they nothing gaine, and if I stay,
'Tis but the shortning of my Life one day.
In thee thy Mother dyes, our Households Name,
My Deaths Reuenge, thy Youth, and Englands Fame:
All these, and more, we hazard by thy stay;
All these are sau'd, if thou wilt flye away.

The Sword of Orleance hath not made me smart,
These words of yours draw Life-blood from my Heart.
On that aduantage, bought with such a shame,
To saue a paltry Life, and slay bright Fame,
Before young Talbot from old Talbot flye,
The Coward Horse that beares me, fall and dye:
And like me to the pesant Boyes of France.
To be Shames scorne, and subiect of Mischance.
Surely, by all the Glorie you haue wonne,
And if I flye, I am not Talbot's Sonne.

Then talke no more of flight, it is no boot, If Sonne to Talbot, dye at Talbot's foot.

Then follow thou thy desp'rate Syre of Creet, Thou Icarus, thy Life to me is sweet:

If thou wilt fight, fight by thy Fathers side, And commendable prou'd, let's dye in pride.

Herald, conduct me to the Dolphins Tent,

To know who hath obtain'd the glory of the day.

Submission Dolphin? Tis a meere French word:

We English Warriours wot not what it meanes.

I come to know what Prisoners thou hast tane,

And to survuey the bodies of the dead.

For prisoners askst thou? Hell our prison is.

But tell me whom thou seek'st?

But where's the great Alcides of the field,

Valiant Lord <hi rend="italic">Talbot</hi> Earle of Shrewsbury?

Created for his rare successe in Armes,

Great Earle of <hi rend="italic">Washford, Waterford</hi>,

and <hi rend="italic">Valence</hi>,

Lord <hi rend="italic">Talbot</hi> of <hi rend="italic">Goodrig</hi> and <hi rend="italic">Vrchinfield</hi>,

Lord <hi rend="italic">Strange</hi> of <hi rend="italic">Shrewsbury</hi>,<hi rend="italic">Goodrig</hi> and <hi rend="italic">Vrchinfield</hi>,

Puc. Heere's a silly stately stile indeede: The Turke that two and fiftie Kingdomes hath, Writes not so tedious a stile as this. Him that thou magnifi'st with all these Titles, Stinki and fly-blowne lyes here at our feete.

Lucy. Is Talbot slaine, the Frenchmens only Scourge, Your Kingdomes terror, and blacke Nemesis?

Oh were mine eye-balles into Bullets turn'd, That I in rage might shoot them at your faces. Oh, that I could but call these dead to life, It were enough to fright the Realme of France. Were but his Picture left amongst you here,

Pucel. I thinke this vpstart is old Talbots Ghost, He speakes with such a proud commanding spirit:
For Gods sake let him haue him, to keepe them here,
They would but stinke, and putrifie the ayre.

Char. Go take their bodies hence.

Lucy. Ile beare them hence: but from their ashes shal be reard
A Phœnix that shall make all France affear'd.

Char. So we be rid of them, do with him what you wilt.

And now to Paris in this conquering vaine,
All will be ours, now bloody Talbots slaine.

King. Haue you perus'd the Letters from the Pope,
The Emperor, and the Earle of Arminack?

Glo. I haue my Lord, and their intent is this,
They humbly sue vnto your Excellence,
To haue a godly peace concluded of,
Betweene the Realmes of England, and of France.

King. How doth your Grace affect their motion?

Glo. Well (my good Lord) and as the only meanes
To stop effusion of our Christian blood,
And stablish quietnesse on every side.

I marry Uncle, for I alwayes thought
It was both impious and unnaturall,
That such immanity and bloody strife
Should reigne among Professors of one Faith.

Bcs beside my Lord, the sooner to effect,
And surer binde this knot of amity,
The Earl of Arminacke neere knit to Charles,
A man of great Authoritie in France,
Proffers his onely daughter to your Grace,
In marriage, with a large and sumptuous Dowrie.

My Lords Ambassadors, your severall suites
Have bin consider'd and debated on,
Your purpose is both good and reasonable:
And therefore are we certainly resolu'd,
To draw conditions of a friendly peace.
The first Part of Henry the Sixt.

Which by my Lord of Winchester we meane shall be transported presently to France.

Glo. And for the proffer of my Lord your Master, I haue inform'd his Highnesse so at large, As liking of the Ladies vertuous gifts, Her Beauty, and the valew of her Dower, He doth intend she shall be Englands Queene.

King. In argument and proofe of which contract, Beare her this Iewell, pledge of my affection. And so my Lord Protector see them guarded, And safely brought to Douer, wherein ship'd Commit them to the fortune of the sea.

Exeunt.

Stay my Lord Legate, you shall first receiue the summe of money which I promised Should be deliuered to his Holinesse, For cloathing me in these graue Ornaments.

I will attend vpon your Lordships leysure.

I will attend vpon your Lordships leysure.

Now Winchester will not submit, I trow, Or be inferior to the proudest Peere; Humfrey of Gloster, thou shalt well perceiue, That neither in birth, or for authoritie, The Bishop will be ouer-borne by thee: Ile either make thee stoope, and bend thy knee, Or sacke this Country with a mutiny.
Alanson, Bastard,

Enter Charles, Burgundy, Alanson, Bastard, Reignier, and Ione.

Char. These newes (my Lords) may cheere our drooping spirits:

'Tis said, the stout Parisians do revolt, and turne againe vnto the warlike French.

Alan. Then march to Paris Royall Charles of France, and keepe not backe your powers in dalliance.

Pucel. Peace be amongst them if they turne to vs, else ruine combate with their Pallaces.

Enter Scout.

Scout. Successe vnto our valiant Generall, and happinesse to his accomplices.

Scout. The English Army that diuided was into two parties, is now conioyn'd in one, and meanes to giue you battell presently.

Char. Somewhat too sodaine Sirs, the warning is, but we will presently prouide for them.
I trust the Ghost of Talbot is not there: Now he is gone my Lord, you need not fear.

Of all base passions, Fear is most accurst. Command the Conquest Charles, it shall be thine: Let Henry fret, and all the world repine.

Then on my Lords, and France be fortunate. Enter Ione de Pucell. The Regent conquers, and the Frenchmen flye. Now help ye charming Spelles and Periapts, And ye choise spirits that admonish me, And giue me signes of future accidents. Enter Fiends. This speedy and quicke appearance argues proofe Of your accurst diligence to me. Now ye Familiar Spirits, that are cull'd Out of the powerfull Regions vnder earth. Helpe me this once, that France may get the field. They walk, and speake not.

What ransome must I pay before I passe?
For I perceiue I am thy prisoner.
She's beautifull; and therefore to be Wooed:

What though I be inthral'd, he seems a knight

And will not any way dishonor me.

Lady, vouchsafe to listen what I say.

Perhaps I shall be rescu'd by the French,
And then I need not craue his curtesie.

Sweet Madam, giue me hearing in a cause.

Tush, women haue bene captiuate ere now.

Say gentle Princesse, would you not suppose
Your bondage happy, to be made a Queene?

To be a Queene in bondage, is more vile,
Than is a slaue, in base seruility:
For Princes should be free.

And so shall you,
If happy Englands Royall King be free.
Mar. Why what concerns his freedome vnto mee?

Suf. Ile undertake to make thee Henries Queene, To put a Golden Scepter in thy hand, and set a precious Crowne vpon thy head, If thou wilt condiscend to be my

Such commendations as becomes a Maide, A Virgin, and his Seruant, say to him.

Words sweetly plac'd, and modestie directed, But

But Madame, I must trouble you againe, No louing Token to his Maiestie?

Yes, my good Lord, a pure vnspotted heart, Neuer yet taint with loue, I send the King.

And this withall.

But Madame, I must trouble you againe, No louing Token to his Maiestie?

That for thy selfe, I will not so presume, To send such peeuish tokens to a King.

Oh wert thou for my selfe: but Suffolke stay, Thou mayest not wander in that Labyrinth, There Minotaurs and vgly Treasons lurke, Solicite Henry with her wonderous praise.

- Mad naturall Graces that extinguish Art.
- Repeate their semblance often on the Seas.
- That when thou com'st to kneele at "Henries" feete,
  Thou mayest bereaue him of his wits with wonder.

Ah "Ione", sweet daughter "Ione", Ile die with thee.

Pucel. Decrepit Miser, base ignoble Wretch,
I am descended of a gentler blood.
Thou art no Father, nor no Frie
Ah "Ione", this kils thy Fathers heart out-right,
Haue I sought euery Country farre and neere,
And now it is my chance to finde thee out,
Must I behold thy timelesse cruell death:
Ah "Ione", sweet daughter "Ione", Ile die with thee.
Shep. Fye Ione, that thou wilt be so obstacle:

God knowes, thou art a collop of my flesh,

And for thy sake haue I shed many a teare:

Deny me not, I prythee, gentle Ione.

Pucell. Pezant auant. You haue suborn'd this man

Of purpose, to obscure my Noble birth.

'Tis true, I gaue a Noble to the Priest,

The morne that I was wedded to her mother.

Kneele downe and take my blessing, good my Gyrle.

Wilt thou not stoope? Now cursed be the time

Of thy natiuitie: I would the Milke

Thy mother gaue thee when thou suck'st her brest,

Or else, when thou didst keepe my Lambes a-field,

I wish some rauenous Wolfe had eaten thee.

Doest thou deny thy Father, cursed Drab?

O burne her, burne her, hanging is too good.

Take her away, for she hath liu'd too long,

To fill the world with vicious qualities.

First let me tell you whom you haue condemn'd;

Not me, begotten of a Shepheard Swaine,

But issued from the Progeny of Kings.

Vertuous and Holy, chosen from aboue,

By inspiration of Celestiall Grace,

To worke exceeding myracles on earth.

I neuer had to do with wicked Spirits.

But you that are polluted with your lustes,

Stain'd with the guiltlesse blood of Innocents,

Corrupt and tainted with a thousand Vices:

Because you want the grace that others haue,

You iudge it straight a thing impossible

To compasse Wonders, but by helpe of diuels.
No misconceyued, Ione of Aire hath beene
A Virgin from her tender infancie,
Chaste, and immaculate in very thought,
Whose Maiden-blood thus rigorously effus'd,
Will cry for Vengeance, at the Gates of Heauen.

I, I: away with her to execution.
And hearke ye sirs: because she is a Maide,
Spare for no Faggots, let there be enow:
Place barrelles of pitch vpon the fatall stake,
That so her torture may be shortned.

Will nothing turne your vnrelenting hearts?
Then Ione discouer thine infirmity,
That wartanteth by Law, to be thy priuiledge.
I am with childe ye bloody Homicides:
Murther not then the Fruite within my Wombe,
Although ye hale me to a violent death.

Now heauen forfend, the holy Maid with child?
The greatest miracle that ere ye wrought.
Is all your strict precisenesse come to this?

She and the Dolphin haue bin iugling,
I did imagine what would be her refuge.

Well go too, we'll haue no Bastards liue,
Especially since Charles must Father it.
You are deceyu'd, my childe is none of his,
It was Alanson that inioy'd my loue.

Alanson that notorious Macheuile?
It dyes, and if it had a thousand liues.

Oh giue me leaue, I haue deluded you,
'Twas neyther Charles, nor yet the Duke I nam'd,

Why here's a Gyrle: I think she knowes not wel (There were so many) whom she may accuse.

It's signe she hath beene liberall and free.
And yet forsooth she is a Virgin pure.

Then lead me hence: with whom I leaue my curse.
May neuer glorious Sunne reflex his beames.
Vpon the Countrey where you make abode:
But darknesse, and the gloomy shade of death.
Inuiron you, till Mischeefe and Dispaire,
Driue you to break your necks, or hang your selues.

Exit
Enter Cardinall.

Yorke. Speake Winchester, for boyling choller chokes, The hollow passage of my poison'd voyce, By sight of these our balefull enemies.

Win. Charles, and the rest, it is enacted thus:

That in regard King Henry giues consent, Of meere compassion, and of lenity, To ease your Countrie of distressefull Warre, And suffer you to breath in fruitfull peace, You shall become true Liegemen to his Crowne.

And Charles, vpon condition thou wilt sweare:

To pay him tribute, and submit thy selfe, Thou shalt be plac'd as Viceroy vnder him, And still enjoy thy Regall dignity.

This proffer is absurd, and reasonlesse.

Alan. Must he be then as shadow of himselfe? Adorne his Temples with a Coronet, And yet in substance and authority, Retaine but pruilege of a priuate man?

This proffer is absurd, and reasonlesse.

Char. Tis knowne already that I am possest With more then halfe the Gallian Territories, And therein reuerenc'd for their lawfull King. Shall I for lucre of the rest vn-vanquisht, Detract so much from that prerogatiue, As to be call'd but Viceroy of the whole? No Lord Ambassador, Ile rather keepe That which I haue, than coueting for more Be cast from possibility of all.

Yorke. Insulting Charles, hast thou by secret meanes:

Vs'd intercession to obtaine a league, And now the matter growes to compremize,
Stand'st thou aloofe vpon Comparison.
Either accept the Title thou vsurp'st,
Of benefit proceeding from our King,
And not of any challenge of Desert,
Or we will plague thee with incessant Warres.

Reig.

My Lord, you do not well in obstinacy,
To cauil in the course of this Contract:
If once it be neglected, ten to one,
We shall not finde like opportunity.

Alan.

To say the truth, it is your policie,
To saue your Subiects from such massacre
And ruthlesse slaughters as are dayly seene
By our proceeding in Hostility,
And therefore take this compact of a Truce,
Although you breake it, when your pleasure serues.

War.

How sayst thou Charles?
Shall our Condition stand?

Char.

It Shall:
Onely reseru'd, you claime no interest
In any our Townes of Garrison.

Yor.

Then sweare Allegence to his Maiesty,
As thou art Knight, neuer to disobey,
Nor be Rebellious to the Crowne of England,
Thou nor thy Nobles, to the Crowne of England.
So, now dismise your Army when ye please:
Hang vp your Ensignes, let your Drummes be still,
For heere we entertaine a solemne peace.

Exeunt

Enter Suffolke in conference with the King,

<lb/>Glocester and Exeter."</stage>

King."

>"Your wondrous rare description (noble Earle)"

Of beauteous Margaret hath astonish'd me:

Her vertues graced with externall gifts,

And like as rigour of tempestuous gustes

Prouokes the mightiest Hulke against the tide,

So am I driuen by breath of her Renowne,

Either to suffer Shipwracke, or arriue

Where I may haue fruition of her Loue.

Tush my good Lord, this superficiall tale,

Is but a preface of her worthy praise:

The cheefe perfections of that louely Dame,

(Had I sufficient skill to vutter them)

Would make a volume of inticing lines,

Able to rauish an y dull conceit.

And which is more, she is not so Diuine,

So full repleate with choice of all delights,

But with as humble lowlinesse of minde,

She is content to be at your command:

Command I meane, of Vertuous chaste intents,

Henry as her Lord.

And otherwise, will Henry ne're presume:

Therefore my Lord Protector, giue consent,

That Marg'ret may be Englands Royall Queene.

So should I giue consent to flatter sinne,

You know (my Lord your Highnesse is betroath'd

Into another Lady of esteeme,

How shall we then dispense with that contract,

And not deface your Honor with reproach?

Vnto another Lady of esteeme,

How shall we then dispense with that contract,

And not deface your Honor with reproach?"
As doth a Ruler with unlawfull Oathes,
Or one that at a Triumph, hauing vow'd
To try his strength, forsaketh yet the Listes
By reason of his Aduersaries oddes.
A poore Earles daughter is vnequall oddes,
And therefore may be broke without offence.

Gloucester.
Why what (I pray) is Margaret more
Her Father is no better than an Earle,
Although in glorious Titles he excell.

Suf.
Yes my Lord, her Father is a King,
The King of Naples, and Jerusalem,
And of such great Authoritie in France,
As his alliance will confirme our peace,
And keepe the Frenchmen in Allegeance.

Glo.
And so the Earle of Arminacke may doe,
Because he is neere Kinsman vnto Charles.

Exet.
Beside, his wealth doth warrant a liberal dower,
Where Reignier sooner will receyue, than giue.

Suf.
A Dowre my Lords? Disgrace not so your King,
That he should be so abiect, base, and poore,
To choose for wealth, and not for perfect Loue.

Henry is able to enrich his Queene,
And not to seeke a Queene to make him rich.

An ink mark follows the end of this line.

So worthlesse Pezants bargaine for their Wiuues,
As Market men for Oxen, Sheepe, or Horse,
Marriage is a matter of more worth,
Then to be dealt in by Attturney-ship.
Not whom we will, but whom his Grace affects,
The first Part of Henry the Sixt.

Must be companion of his Nuptiall bed.
And therefore Lords, since he affects her most,
Most of all these reasons bindeth vs,
In our opinions she should be preferr'd.
For what is forced? but a Hell,
An Age of discord and continuall strife,
Whereas the contrarie bringeth blisse,
Whom should we match with Henry being a King,

But Margaret, that is daughter to a King:
Her peerelesse feature, ioyned with her birth,
Approues her fit for none, but for a King.
Her valiant courage, and vndaunted spirit,
(More then in women commonly is seene)
Will answer our hope in issue of a King.
For Henry, sonne vnto a Conqueror,
Is likely to beget more Conquerors,
If with a Lady of so high resolue,
(As is faire Margaret) he be link'd in loue.
Then yeeld my Lords, and heere conclude with mee,
That Margaret shall be Queene, and none but shee.

Whether it be through force of your report,
My Noble Lord of Suffolke: Or for that My tender youth was neuer yet attaint
With any passion of inflaming loue,
I cannot tell: but this I am assur'd,
I feele such sharpe dissention in my breast,
Such fierce alarums both of Hope and Feare,
As I am sicke with working of my thoughts,
Take therefore shipping, poste my Lord to France;
Agree to any couenants, and procure
That Lady Margaret do vouchsafe to come
To crosse the Seas to England, and be crown'd

Queene.

For your expences and sufficent charge,

Among the people gather vp a tenth.

Be gone I say, for till you do returne,

I rest perplexed with a thousand Cares.

And you (good Vnckle) banish all offence:

If you do censure me, by what you were,

Not what you are, I know it will excuse

This sodaine execution of my will.

And so conduct me, where from company,

I may reuolue and ruminiate my greefe.

Exit.

I greefe I feare me, both at first and last.

Thus Suffolke hath preuail'd, and thus he goes

As did the youthfull Paris once to Greece,

With hope to finde the like euent in loue,

But prosper better than the Troian did:

Margaret shall now be Queene, and rule the King:

But I will rule both her, the King, and Realme.

Exit
